Quest International Receives Siemens Best Global Supplier of the Year Award

Irvine, CA - November 2006 – Quest International, Inc. announced that it was the 2006 recipient of the Siemens Medical Systems Best Global Supplier of the Year Award, at the Siemens annual supplier conference.

Quest received the prestigious award for their outstanding business and supply chain management, providing sales, service and support, while meeting the global logistic requirements of Siemens Medical Solutions.

“Being selected as the Best Global Supplier, from a field of over 1,200 Siemens suppliers, is a great honor”, said Shawn Arshadi, President of Quest. “This is a testament to Quest and the commitment our employees provide in meeting the demanding and changing needs of a worldwide medical provider like Siemens.”

From the beginning, Quest sought to be a “best in class” provider. Quest works closely with Siemens on a global basis to understand the requirements and meet their expectations. This partnership started with a critical product repair transition and a challenge to set-up the supply chain to optimally support Siemens Medical and their global customer base.

“In meeting the imaging peripheral service and support needs of Siemens, Quest utilizes our ISO 9001 infrastructure to track, maintain and excel in meeting the needs of Siemens.” said Kaye Katouzian, Vice President of Quest. “Just as Siemens strives to provide excellent service, Quest also excels in going above and beyond in meeting the global needs of Siemens.”

Quest is customer focused, concentrating on providing excellent quality products at reduced costs. The result of this hard work and commitment was rewarded by receiving the prestigious Best Global Supplier of the Year Award.
